The Symposium was co-sponsored by the Kettil Bruun Society and the International Council on Alcohol and Addictions.

The aim of this 29th Symposium was to have an in-depth look at the advances in alcohol research and raise further research issues and opportunities, taking into account experiences from around the world. The scope of the Symposium was broadly defined to include studies of determinants of drinking, practices, attitudes, and problems in the general as well as in the clinical populations, and the social and institutional responses to drinking-related problems. Research and action research reports were welcome as much as theoretical papers. Participants arrived from the whole range of social and health sciences.

The Symposium included discussions on submitted papers, prepared discussion sessions and topical workshops. The emphasis was on discussions, papers were pre-circulated and then introduced by the author with a 10-minute presentation prior to discussion.

Pre-symposium workshops were organized on Saturday, May 31st and Sunday, June 1st.

As ten year ago, the symposium sessions and pre-symposium workshops were held at the Collegium Medicum of the Jagiellonian University, located in the Krakow Old City, Sw. Anny str. 12.
